

1. A method of constructing a membrane probe comprising:

- 5 (a) providing a substrate;
- (b) creating a depression within said substrate;
- (c) locating conductive material within said
 depression;
- (d) connecting a conductive trace to said 10 conductive material; and
- (e) removing said substrate from said conductive material.